Marble is a naturally calcareous and porous stone whose hues and veins can vary. It is not made for outdoor use.

Marble is particularly sensitive to acids (Coca-Cola, champagne, white wine, vinegar, rain in polluted environment) which can leave stains in a few hours.

Marble is particularly sensitive to shocks, especially between trays. Chips can easily appear. Given the high weight of the trays, we advise not to move them.

The stones are polished and given a waterproof treatment before delivery.

Trays should be cleaned after each use with a damp cloth and with after each time an aggressive product is spilled.

In addition, the anti-stain treatment should be applied at large once every 15 days.

The trays cannot stay under the rain, it is important that you shelter them according to the climate.

Maison Drucker does not guarantee trays that have been used outdoors.
